Product Overview

With its unique cross-member copper jacket design and a bonded front core, the A-Frame has become famous for its ability to combine 3 performance features - controlled expansion, deep penetration and 95% weight retention at all velocities. From tip to base, the A-Frame features a soft, semi-spitzer lead nose protects it against felt recoil while in the magazine. Next, the pure copper jacket begins to taper around the pure lead core at the tip of the bullet in an effort to help control the expansion rate at a wide range of velocities. The core towards the base of the bullet is where the momentum for the deep penetration comes from. The wrap-around jacket on the base of the bullet helps retain the bullet's original weight and prevent deformation. This is not loaded ammunition.

Excellent Bullet

Loaded this to 2665 FPS and held 1" group at 100yds. Plan to use for upcoming Shiras Moose.

Great Bullet!

I used this bullet in my 378 GNR Encore. Killed Eland, Kudu, Heartbeast and Letchway.

Worked like it should, mostly.

Have great seating flat based bullets in nickle cases I had on hand. Not just A-Frames.

I used these this year ...

I used these this year when hunting Alaska Brown Bear. I made a one shot kill at 250 yards on a 10 foot boar. The bullet performed beautifully. The bullet passed through even at that yardage.
