

UNITED AGAINST CANNED LION SHOOTING

- BY PAUL HUNTER

Rowland Ward joins other conservation groups in taking a stand against the shooting of captive-bred lions.

Rowland Ward Ltd. has united with several highly regarded international conservation groups to take a firm stand against the practice of captive-bred lion shooting. The shooting of lions bred in captivity not only has no conservation benefit, but also it is extremely damaging to the reputation of hunters and to sustainable hunting around the world.

Last month, the International Council for Game and Wildlife Conservation (CIC) and Dallas Safari Club's (DSC) published a joint statement on captive bred lion shooting. Today Rowland Ward Ltd., the International Professional Hunters' Association (IPHA), the African Operators' and Professional Hunters' Associations of Africa (OPHAA), and the African Professional Hunters Association (APHA) have joined as co-signatories to the statement, which you can read below.

SHARE THIS:

LIKE THIS:

Be the first to like this.

PREVIOUS POST
Fair Chase Outfitters

NEXT POST
Celebrity Power Undermining Global Conservation Efforts, Scientists Warn

Newsletter Sign Up

Enter your email address to follow Rowland Ward and receive notifications of new posts by email.

SUBSCRIBE

ROWLAND WARD
FOUNDED 1870

Rowland Ward LTD. helps preserve and increase the habitat of (large) fauna worldwide by supporting sustainable fair-chase hunting, which, in turn directly benefits the local indigenous people of the areas involved.

Rowland Ward Foundation
2,493 followers

Follow Page

Learn more

