Product Overview

When you're hunting, and must have both arms free for climbing hills, trees, mountains or carrying your gear, you need a rifle-carry, sling system that will help you do that safely. The "Backpack Double Sling" from Vero Vellini will help you accomplish that and move with ease and confidence.

The Vero Vellini Double Sling is made of the highest quality materials and workmanship in Germany. The "Backpack" Sling fits snug to your back like a backpack and comes off quickly for a shot at moment's notice. The Backpack Double sling is fully adjustable on each shoulder and offers quick release for ease over heavy winter clothing. The sling can also be used in hunting and shooting to help support both arms, by looping the sling behind the elbows, to more firmly hold the rifle stock for better support when taking an off-hand shot and no suitable rest is available. The "Backpack Double Sling" is made with high density neoprene in Forest Green with Dark Brown piping trim with durable naturally tanned brown leather end panels that will accent your firearm handsomely. Fits all firearms swivels, from narrow European, one inch, to wider swivel styles.

Features

- Double sling fits like backpack straps
- Fully adjustable on each shoulder
- Quick release for ease of deployment
- Can be used for support while shooting
- High density neoprene for comfort
- 42" length.

Steven, Midway should carry the HD quick-detach, push button swivels....Midwest Industries are what I typically use.

Great for longer hikes

I love this sling (I have two of them,) but I carry mine either side to work as a single sling over my right shoulder then adjust the other one to go over my left shoulder and around my front to my right hip; the gun is not across my back like a backpack but off my right side. As a matter of fact with this method it works well with a backpack and holds the gun secure on the packs right side.
